

Allison Shorten

PhD , RN, RM, FACM

Dr. Shorten is the Director of the Office for Interprofessional Curriculum at the University of Alabama at Birmingham (UAB) and Professor in the School of Nursing. Her research focuses on developing, evaluating and implementing decision aids for shared decision making in pregnancy. Her recent work applies systematic strategies to improve women's access to health decision support using information technology locally, nationally and internationally.

Hosted By

The UNM College of Nursing
PhD Program

With Support From

a generous grant from the Hearst Foundations

Stepping stones
on the research journey:

Building a program of research from inspiration to implementation

Dr. Shorten will describe strategies for developing a meaningful program of research, beginning with ideas that inspire new researchers to take their first steps, as well as insight into setting realistic goals and expanding the research scope to reach the bedside and implement evidence in practice.

November 29th, 2017

1:00 - 2:00pm (MST)

To Attend:

This webinar will take place via Zoom.

Please contact Mary Jastrzemski
via email at maryjazz@salud.unm.edu
for online participation link.

This flyer being shared through

NEXUS
THE NURSING EDUCATION XCHANGE